WHEELING, OCTOBER 20, 1891.

"You're Another."

The other day the New York Herald exposed a Tammany scheme to colonize voters in the interest of Democracy and reform. The Herald had worked the case up thoroughly before it made the exposure; had sent two of its own men disguised as heelers; had located the house in which the illegal voters were lodged for two weeks at Tammany's cost; had talked with the woman who keeps the house and who is proud of the confidence Tammany reposes in her year after year; had conversed with the Tammany men who were paying ten dollars for an illegal vote-had worked down to the bottom of the whole scandalous scheme, and, being sure of its ground, gave the job away and all who were connected with it.

Of course the exposure made a sensation. It was not a new scheme. The same thing has been done before, but it has not always been possible to produce proof so conclusive. Now the Tammany men come back and say that they have done no colonizing, but the wicked Republicans have done no end of it-in spite of the interesting fact that the whole election machinery is in Tammany's hands.

Tammany knows the people of New York to be very green, but is it possible that they are as green as Tammany thinks they are-that they will positively refuse to accept the proof submitted by an independent newspaper with a decided Democratic leaning? Those illegal voters, brought from Philadelphia and elsewhere, gathered together under Tammany eyes and lodged at Tammany cost, to be paid by Tammany when they shall have put in their fraudulent votes, are the hope of the Democratic party in the Democratic city of New York.

That great city must roll up an immense Democratic majority, or the Democratic nominee for governor will have hard pulling to get through. It is a desperate game, but Tammany has worked it so often that it has become expert, and the conscience of the Democratic party does not revolt against it.

It would be assuming too much to take it for granted that the exposure will thwart Tammany with all its power to protect criminals in its service. Tammany is ambitious to rule the state and the country as it does the city, and to this end it will bend its remarkable en-

A Dissolving View.

Gen. Wade Hampton thinks the Farmers' Alliance is going to pieces in the South. It never was intended to be a serious factor in that Democratic region. So far as there has been an Alliance movement in the South it was intended to hoodwink the Republican farmers in the North, draw them into the independent folly and so make easy a Democratic triumph in the next Presidential election. The northern farmer is getting his eyes open, which is as bad as bad can be for the success of the Democratic-Alliance scheme.

The Alliance as a political factor and general disturber of the peace was biggest when it was born. Since that time, marking the most interesting event in its history, the Alliance has gone steadily down hill. It has kept up a mighty beating of tom-toms, but noise is not substance, and it requires substance to make a political party.

A Heavy Contract.

Mrs. Parnell's friends promise in her behalf a biography of her late husband which shall vindicate him in the matter which led to his dethronement as the "uncrowned king" and hurried him to his grave. Mrs. Parnell is to bring to light chapters in the Parnell-O'Shea affair which Mr. Parnell was too proud to lay before the public, although they will remove from his name the stigma that has been placed on it.

This will be a great service to a man who will fill a large space in the history of Ireland and in British legislative annals. Until the work shall appear it will continue to remain a matter of doubt whether Mr. Parnell can be vindicated. His conduct was his worst accuser.

Good Work for the Fair.

From Col. Alex. Campbell's interesting letters to the INTELLIGENCER it is easy to imagine that he is making the object of his visit highly interesting to the Australians, to whom he is no stranger as an official representative. Those who know Col, Campbell need not be reminded of the intensity of purpose with which he addresses himself to the informed and attractive manner, and we have reason to expect a substantial response. Col. Campbell's letter published to-day gives a graphic account of the progress of his journey in a land of wonders.

The Rev. Samuel Cut It Fine.

That always interesting person, Rev. Sam Small, is charged by Rev. II. U. Monroe, an Episcopal clergyman of Massachusetts, witna shrewd real estate transaction. While Small was president of Ogden University be sold Mr. Monroe a town lot for $1,000 for the account of the university.

Mr. Monroe has since made the sad discovery that the university got $500 of the money, the enterprising Samuel the remainder. This is what Small would call downright meanness.

Notwithstanding any shady trans action in which he may be engaged, Small will continue to be in request by those persons who admire his style of man. He has had a wonderful run for one of his stamp. While he draws crowds of the curious and lays up treasure the hard-working brethren of the cloth who labor for the good they hope to do are lucky to get food and raiment.

It must be that these plain preachers of the gospel occasionally have some thoughts of their own.

West Virginia's Development.

At the present rate of progress it will be difficult for any politician to be lost in the "interior" of West Virginia in the next campaign. There will soon be no interior in the sense in which it has been spoken of. The wilderness is already blossoming, towns are being born and progress is the order of the day. From present indications the old locality known as Marlin's Bottoms is to give way to the town of Marlinton, and Pocahontas county is about to decide by popular vote whether the county seat shall remain at Huntersville or be removed to the new town. The men at the helm of the enterprise will make it go if anybody can, and they have excellent material to work on. The fine county of Pocahontas deserves a live, progressive county seat.

Remarkable Innocence.

The remarkable success of the Bistell thieves was hardly more so than the unsuspecting innocence of the people who bought all sorts of valuables from the children.

The purchasers cheap for cash did not suspect that the children must have had some regular source of supply for shoes which they were able to sell for less than any regulardealer could sell them; nor was it sufficient to occasion remark when the children appeared with jewelry and costly silverware.

If there had been no ready market, the goods would not have been stolen, and yet it seems to be assumed that all the purchasers, some of them regular customers, were innocents.

Back to Work.

Mr. Blaine, unmindful of the reports that he was never more to return to Washington, is having his house set in order and in a few days will be settled down to the work of preparing his annual report. Mr. Blaine is coldly, even stubbornly and unkindly, unconcerned about the reputation of the prophets who know better than he does the state of his health and the plans he has made for the near future. It must be admitted that the Man from Maine is the most perverse of politicians. The part assigned him in the coming Presidential campaign was to die before the falling of the autumn leaves.

The postmaster general makes the surprising statement that the experiment of free delivery in farming districts has been so successful that in his opinion it would be self-sustaining if made general. Free delivery in the rural districts might fall short of being self-sustaining and yet be justified. Beyond question it would promote the general welfare.

Osserve in to-day's dispatches that a Mexican duel is not a French duel by the difference between pinking a gentleman in some unimportant part of his anatomy and carving that same gentleman into steaks, roasts and soup meat. When a Mexican lays his dainty hand on a deadly weapon he means business, and he understands his art.

THE fines imposed on keepers of houses of bad repute in this cityamount to a license fee, and a not very high one at that. The offenders pay and go on as before until license day comes around again. There is no pretense of an effort to close these places.

Judge John Jackson is commanding strong support in his canvass at Washington for one of the new United States judgeships. The position is one for which be is well qualified by long experience in a good preparatory school.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM
Of our beloved sister in faith, Mrs. Helen Bloch, who died at New York, September 23, buried at Wheeling October 2, 1891. The following sentiments were expressed at the special meeting of the Ladius' Hebrew Benevolent Association, held October 9, 1891.
Whenever death enters the abodes of our fellowmen and tears assunder the lovellest ties of happiness and peace, severing the swestest bonds of love and friendship, then it behooves us, both as israelites and friends to sympathize with the mourning and to offer them our consolition, believing that "sorrow shared" is less severely felt.

We how down in humble submission to the will of Providence, who has relieved our suffering sister and placed her in His beavenly abodes, to bestow upon her immortal soul that reward which He holds out for all who have lived in righteomaces, who have been true to themselves and trie to others, and who fulfilled their destines on earth.

We extend to the bereft family, her rabba and true to others, and who fulfilled their cestines on earth.

We extend to the bereft family, her noble sons, Messis. S. S. and Anron Bloch, and their sister, Mrs. Jenule Felsethield. In New York, unto whom the deceased was a kind and loying mother, our deepestsympathy and ber to assure them that the memory of their beloved mother will not vanish from our mixts nor from the minds of the members of our association.

It was resolved to have these resolutions printed in one of our daily papers, and in the Jetch Exponent and a copy be sent to the bereft family here.

A GOOD SHOW.

We are always advising you to advertise, and to keep on advertising, but that does not cover the ground entirely. Of course, you should make your advertising effective—if an electric light be available, you should not use a "tallow dip" to light the path to your store.

What do we mean by that? Simply that the more conspicuous, the more artistic, the more attractive, the more original you make your advertisements, the more people will see and read them, and the more customers you will have to contribute to your cash-drawer.
